WELCOME TO THE UNIVERSITY OF NEW CALEDONIA

Catherine Ris

President of the University of New Caledonia

Welcome to the University of New Caledonia

Located at the heart of the Indo-Pacific, the University of New Caledonia is proud to offer students from around the world a truly unique immersion experience. Here, where exceptional biodiversity meets a rich tapestry of languages, cultures, and histories, our campus provides an ideal setting to explore the many facets of Francophone identity in a globalized world.

Since 2012, we have developed tailor-made French Immersion Campus programs to meet the needs of international students. These three-week courses combine French as a Foreign Language instruction with academic lectures, cultural activities, and immersive field trips. At the core of this Immersion Campus is a unique opportunity to learn French in a truly multilingual and multicultural setting. New Caledonia, shaped by both Pacific legacies and French heritage, offers an ideal space to explore the deep connections between language, culture, and identity.

Rooted in a sociolinguistic approach, our program encourages students to experience New Caledonia as a living laboratory of languages, cultures, and biodiversity. Through real-world interactions and intercultural learning, participants gain not only linguistic skills, but also a deeper understanding of how language reflects and shapes social identity and cultural belonging.

We look forward to welcoming you to our campus!

PROGRAMME HIGHLIGHTS

- 3 weeks, 3 themes and one main objective: speaking French
- 45 hours small groups French classes in the morning (max. 15 students)
- Optional DELF/DALF preparation and official exam
- Academic lectures, hands-on workshops, and cultural excursion
- Accommodation and local transport included

« L'expérience du French Immersion Campus était un changement dans ma vie parce qu'il a créé une nouvelle famille qui fait la combinaison de tous les pays du Pacifique dans une langue française. »

MORE THAN JUST FRENCH LESSONS

This immersive summer school invites adult learners (18+) to discover the French language through orality — a cross-disciplinary theme rooted in local cultures and research.

Each week invites participants to explore a new facet of oral expression, from sharing knowledge about biodiversity and traditional plants to discovering Pacific cultures through storytelling, sensory, and musical experiences.

Rooted in the research strengths of UNC and closely tied to local heritage, this program offers a truly distinctive and place-based learning experience.

Week 1 – Stories, Societies & Island Tales

- Explore the Tjibaou Cultural Centre
- Meet local tribes and learn from Kanak communities
- Take part in traditional craft workshops
- Try traditional Pacific Island dance

Week 2 – Arts & Music in the heart of the Pacific

- Embark on a unique sensory adventure
- Experience new rhythms and vibes
- Immerse yourself in the music and sounds

Week 3 – Botanical Heritage & Plant Secrets

- Discover New Caledonia's incredible biodiversity
- Join a guided botanical walk
- Learn about traditional medicinal plants
- Visit the lagoon aquarium
- Explore an islet

Accommodation: Single room at the University International Residence

This program is indicative in nature and may be revised or further developed.

FEEDBACK FROM PARTICIPANTS IN PREVIOUS EDITIONS

« I really enjoyed the lessons because they were very helpful, interactive, and helped me improve my French skills. »

« I really like the size of each class. It made the class intimate, allowing for the teacher to gain a greater understanding of each persons level and be able to tailor the course to the level of the students. »

« Engaging and immersive. It was jam-packed but not overwhelming. »

« Really good for building oral language skills, and for learning about New Caledonia. »

« L'organisation du programme était excellente. It seemed the organisers really knew what we wanted to learn about and how. »
